"HEATHER" STRAINS MERIT WIDE NOTICE

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

Correspondents are showing much interest in the Hanover blood in my stallion Xenofol. And no wonder. Hanover was not only a champion on the race course, but was a sire of colts and fillies that have carried on in a remarkable way in this country and abroad. As I said last week, Durbar II, maternal grandsire of my "X" horse, is from Armenia, a daughter of the Hanover mare Urania.

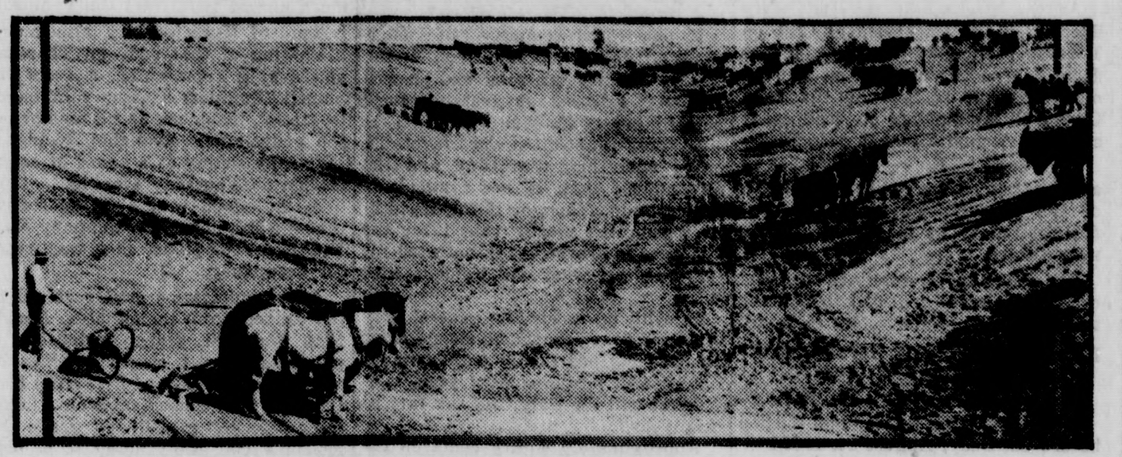
Another thing that might be called to mind is that Hanover traces back to imported Glencoe, blood that courses in the veins of my stallion King Heather. Before being shipped over to the United States, Glencoe became the sire of Pocahontas, the greatest broodmare of all time. It is hardly necessary to say Pocahontas is the founder of the line of producing matrons represented by Antrim, dam of the "King."

Besides Urania, daughters of Hanover that won fame are Rhoda B, Lady Sterling, Handspun and the steady producer, Tea's Over. Rhoda B. was good enough to foal the Epsom Derby winner Orby and, as is familiar to fans everywhere, Lady Sterling had such noted sons as Sir Martin and Sir Barton, real topnotchers.

Tea's Over, aptly named daughter of Tea Rose, achieved remarkable success in producing the good winners Dick Welles, Ort Wells and Dick Finnell and worthwhile female offspring. I am vitally concerned in the best of blood and that's the reason I have gon einto all this discussion of runners of the past and present.

I have been wondering if a bay colt by Supremus, from imported Royal Dispatch, purchased at Saratoga by C. S. Howard, may not turn out to be a stayer; that is, if trained to go a route. Supremus has been siring precocious ones for some years and was a phenomenally fleet performer himself. What he appears to have needed were mates that might transmit stamina and perhaps he has such a mate in Royal Dispatch, a mare producing winners over the hurdles and in steeplechases before being sent to this country. The matron is getting along in years, but the records are filled with worthy accomplishments of other than young mares.

Work Relief Job for the Imperial Valley



One hundred four-horse teams are here busy on one section of the All-American canal which will replace the main now serving California's Imperial valley. The new canal will have a width of 232 feet, a depth of 21 feet and will carry the water of the Colorado river 80 miles across the valley for irrigation purposes. The men and teams shown in the photograph above have moved more than 1,000,000 yards of earth with their Fresno scrapers.

BOARD SENT WASHINGTON WIRE FOR WPA PROJECTS APPROVAL

Supervisors Worried Over Delay Of Administrator In Allocating Funds

A telegram was ordered transmitted to Washington on Monday by the Board of Supervisors, asking speedy approval of the twenty-two WPA projects proposed for San Mateo County.

In their wire communication to WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, the supervisors declared that a serious financial problem confronts the county unless the government speedily approves the projects, recommended by the county unemployment relief committee.

The relief committee already has sent a similar wire to Washington.

County officials declared that unless these projects are approved, the county's unemployed must go on direct relief after August 15 when the WPA supplants the SERA.

When a letter was read from the State Highway Commission, stating that the county must submit a new itemized report on gasoline tax expenditures, County Executive Walter Kellogg was called in to explain. Unless this report is received promptly, payments of the $250,000 county share of tax money will be held up.

Acting Engineer Carl R. Scott said his office is now preparing a revised report which will be submitted to the state before the September 30 deadline and saw no reason why there should be any delay in getting the money, which is not due until November.

Supervisor Albert Witt of Daly City in asking for the presence of Kellogg declared:

"Something's wrong; it's all very queer."

Kellogg stated that the mix-up was due to charter provisions which made the county engineer instead of the county auditor responsible for the report.

"Well, it seems rather ridiculous that there wasn't somebody who could properly prepare this report," Witt remarked.

On suggestion of Supervisor Al Witt of Daly City, a committee was appointed to represent San Mateo County at the ground breaking ceremonies of the proposed new livestock pavilion on Labor Day. The committee is composed of Supervisors Witt, Francis, Poole, Beer and High, Superior Judges Cotton, and McNutt, County Executive Kellogg, Sheriff McGrath, Allen Ward of Burlingame and Hugh Pomeroy, advisor to the County Planning Commission. Labor representatives will name members of the committee at a later date to attend in their behalf.

The board decided that no more beach property will be sold at county tax sales until the recreation commission has had an opportunity to pass upon its recreational values.

Approval was given for expenditure of $4850 as the county's share to match a similar amount appropriated by Redwood City for completing the Woodside road drainage culvert project.

The board approved placing of road markers designating the supervisorial district boundaries.

Request of the recreation commission to inspect property tax sale lists before they are made public was granted. This is being done to prevent purchase of property required for county recreational use by private parties.

Requests of the North Fair Oaks Improvement club for repair of Eighth avenue was referred to the county engineer.

The $25 claim of Mrs. Fannie Bickerstaff for the chassis of a car, said to belong to her, which the county allegedly sold was referred to the district attorney.

The board granted the U. S. Sunnyvale naval air station right of way for a water pipe line.

A resolution was adopted authorizing sale of the Millbrae-Lomita Park school district $32,000 bonds.

The supervisors approved the wage scale for the Lobitos creek bridge project, including increase of daily pay from $4 to $4.50 for laborers and from $6 to $7 for grader operators.

A letter from the Bayshore sanitary district, notifying San Francisco scavengers of the cancelling of a permit to dump garbage in the district was filed for future reference. The permit will expire September 1.

MARRIED IN RENO

Wedding bells rang out in Reno for Ralph Friend, 42, of Park avenue and Pauline K. Bollinger, 36, last Sunday.

Both are residents of Daly City.

MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION HAS GREATEST OF ANNUAL OUTINGS

Large Crowd! Good Time! Everybody Happy! Best Picnic Of Career!

Was you there! At the seventh annual picnic, at Oak Cove Park last Sunday, of the Daly City Merchants Association! If not, you missed a rare treat and one of the best times in your young life.

The day was ideal for an outing and all other conditions proved excellent. The arrangements were carefully planned to give their guests an enjoyable day of recreation, and the details were carried through to an excellent fruition.

The affair started with a parade which formed at the Daly City Hall at 9 o'clock in the morning, the Daly City Band leading with the members ensconsed in a comfortable Greyhound bus and wearing their resplendent new uniforms.

After covering several blocks in the city, the caravan consisting of a large number of automobiles proceeded to the park, arriving in time to get a breathing respite before the actual activities there got well under way.

There was plenty to eat and drink for old and young. Beverages, coffee, hot dogs and ice cream for the children. Everybody had a wonderful time and enjoyed every minute of the day.

The dance platform was crowded nearly all the time, the participants "tripping the light fantastic" to the strains of one of the finest orchestras heard on the grounds for a long time.

The games and all other scheduled affairs were pulled off on time and there was not a hitch in any of the arrangements.

One of the largest, (if not the largest) crowds in the history of this annual affair was on hand and thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment.

A large number of gate prizes were dispensed by drawing to the lucky holders of the winning tickets.

All in all, this seventh annual picnic has been voted the most successful of any of these affairs yet held by the Daly City Merchants. There was no discordant note throughout the entire event; everybody was happy and everybody had a good time, which was the principal object of the promoters.

The general committee desires, through this means, to thank all the subcommittees and those who so generously donated their goods and services to make the picnic the great success it turned out to be. Special thanks are extended to the Daly City Band for the excellent concert rendered on the grounds throughout the day: to Messrs. Callsen, Bodien and Doyle for their conduct of the sports program; to the boys who served in the kitchen, at the bar, at the wheel booth, at the gate and the women who presided as cashiers and sold tickets for their excellent services; to the orchestra for excellent dance music, and to Supervisor Al Witt for his generosity in arranging for and donating the fine Greyhound bus which carried our band boys to and from the park.

The thanks of the Daly City Merchants Association are also tendered Traffic Officer Otto Schramm and John Hanlon for their courtesy in escorting the car containing the picnic receipts from the park to Daly City.

And to all members of the general committee: Thanks, boys, thanks!

The picnic was a "Wow." Enough said. We'll try to put on a better one next year.

TEAM WILL PLAY STATE LEAGUERS AT SANTA CRUZ

Daly City Tanforans Will Travel To City In South In Quest Of Honors

The home baseball team will journey to Santa Cruz next Sunday, August 18, to engage the State League club of that city that afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. A caravan of machines containing about twenty people will start from Daly City at 8 o'clock that morning.

This is expected to be a closely played contest and it will be worth while for any of our citizens who desire to see the game to accompany the caravan.

WHEELER & WOOLSEY HOLMES AND WATSON STARRING IN "NITWITS"

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey come to the screen as hilarious counterpartts of Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson in "The Nitwits," their new feature comedy which starts at the Daly City Theater, Sunday, for three showings, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, August 18, 19 and 20.

As cigar stand proprietors in a song publishers building, they turn amateur sleuths to solve a murder mystery and unmask the sinister "Black Widow" who has been terrorizing the city.

With Betty Grable and Evelyn Brent carrying the leading feminine roles, the cast includes such other favorites as Erik Rhodes, Fred Keating, Hale Hamilton, Arthur Aylesworth, Dorothy Granger, and the colored comedian, Willie Best.

On the same program will be shown "Break of Hearts," with Katherine Hepburn and Charles Boyer.

ADVENTURERS RUN FOUL OF LAW ON SHORT TRIP

Youthful Romance Seekers Make Little Headway In Plan To See World

Two young adventurersome San Franciscans rented red bicycles in that city, on Saturday of last week, and set out for Redwood City, with $60 in their pockets, bent on seeking excitement and seeing the world.

The youngsters are Glen Wright, 8, 687 Hayes street, and Ora Teeples, 10, 1769 Hayes street.

There were three other playmates implicated with the youthful culprits, but these passed out of the picture when the above named duo rented the red bicycles.

The pair spent a considerable portion of their capital purchasing flash lights a B. B. gun two master locks, two St. Regis watches and a hunting knife and case.

A call from the Bureau of Inspectors in San Francisco informed the members of the police department to pick up two children riding red bicycles, headed in the direction of Redwood City.

Officer Benedeth apprehended the youthful pair as they were gaily riding through Colma and turned them over to Chief of Police John T. Doyle to await orders from the San Francisco bureau. That evening the children were turned over to members of the Ingleside station.

The adventurers had $40.85 left of the $60, which they had taken from their parents. They had a fine time with the balance of the money, having treated themselves to a banquet of candy, cones and other eatables, and having a regular spending ogre with no stern parents to say them nay.

All the merchandise purchased by the children was turned over to the Ingleside police.

PEOPLE GIVE SUPPORT TO ALASKA HIGHWAY

By J. W. MARCHBANK

Clever talks in favor of the immediate construction of the Alaska Highway are having their effect all along the Coast. Sentiment for the great thoroughfare is crystalizing fast and its proponents are highly encouraged by developments. Graphic representation by speakers allied with various organizations is one of the means adopted in the campaign.

For example, it has been pointed out that territory larger than the original thirteen colonies and a number of Eastern states combined can be opened up by the building of the highway and at the comparatively small cost of $14,000,000. In expanding the thought of the outlay being little more than a bagatelle, attention has been called to the cost of the road system of the state of Washington-$157,000,000.

Major Malcolm Elliot, who conducted an inquiry into the feasibility of the construction of the highway, stated to a Senate committee that the work was not only feasible, but extremely desirable, due principally to the productive potentialities of Alaska.

Increase in the output of silver for this year over that of last year is indicated by estimates based on the figures released for the first six months of the year by the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. The production of 94,518,000 ounces for six months indicates total for year of 189,036,000 ounces. For 1934 the production was 185,587,994 ounces.

As was to be expected, Mexico led the world with an output in the first half of the year of 35,631,000 ounces, with the United States in second place with 16,742,00 ounces. Canada produced 7,447,000 ounces in the same period.

This country imported refined bullion containing 118,726,000 ounces and also foreign coins to the value of $10,053,270.

Sidney Norman, mining editor of the Vancouver Sun, has an idea British Columbia can pull itself out of the trough of the depression by development of the mining areas of the northern province. In picturesque language he paints the plight in which British Columbia, in company with the rest of the world, finds herself and tells the way out. As the notion is right along the line I have been emphasizing in these articles for almost three years I'll do a bit of quoting. Mr. Norman says:

"The sixth winter of the deepest, most far-reaching depression in world history has passed and the seventh now looms with distress still prevalent on every hand.

No man who has sensed the irresistible, fundamental urge motivating the tremendous changes of the past six years can doubt that the frenzied era of trampling individualism, selfish aggrandizement and ruthless exploitation has passed.

We now stand upon the first steps of a truly new deal, in which we shall not be permitted to ignore the right of decent men to live by honest work in moderate comfort and security. A fairer division of the wealth created by teamwork of brain, capital and brawn is inevitable.

British Columbia is in debt; held as in a vise by the wages of borrowed money, which demands its pound of flesh. The individuals who hold these obligations are not to blame; but most assuredly the system that permits it is. It is reasonably certain that for many years to come, at least, our economic system will be based upon metallic backing which must be widely extended if the system is to survive. In that respect British Columbia is as lucky as any other area in the world and in that fact lies the possibility of return to normal, pay-as-you go freedom from oppression that is now sapping its lifeblood.

British Columbia was made by mines; she has been largely supported by mines and in those mines still lies her destiny.

In the grand old mountains is enough hidden wealth to set every able-bodied man at creative work."

A true message, right from the heart.

MASS MEETING FOR DISCUSSING IMPROVEMENTS

Speakers To Elucidate Fine Points of Proposed New Projects For City

At the meeting of the Daly City Recreation and Improvement Club on Tuesday evening of this week, it was decided after discussion that a mass meeting would be held at the Daly City Hall Auditorium on Wednesday evening, August 21, at 8 o'clock.

This meeting is for the purpose of acquainting citizens with the details of the proposed improvements that are desired to be made here in the near future.

The following circular was read and ordered printed and distributed for the edification of the voters at large:

READ AND STUDY THIS CIRCULAR CAREFULLY BEFORE SATURDAY, AUG. 24, 1935

Why should this be read and studied before Saturday, August 24, 1935?

Because there is to be a city election on that day and this is in reference to it.

Is this election of real interest and importance to the people of Daly City?

Yes—very much so.

What is the real purpose of the election?

To provide a way for the city to pay its proportion in order that federal money may be obtained for much needed improvements in our city and for putting men to work.

What are the proposed improvements?

(1) Library.
(2) Community Center Building.
(3) Vista Grande Park.
(4) Vista Grande Park Auditorium.
(5) City Hall.
(6) Fire Houses.
(7) Jail.
(8) Water and Fire Alarm.

What is the approximate value of these improvements?

Roughly estimated, they will be worth $100,000.

What will Daly City have to pay toward the projects?

Under present federal plans, Daly City should be required to pay from 20 to 30 per cent of the total cost of the improvements.

Would this mean a bond election with bonds and interest to pay over a number of years?

No; if this plan should be adopted, it would not.

How would the money be raised if the vote is favorable on the proposition next Saturday, August 24, 1935?

The money would be raised by a tax for one year only.

Would this mean higher taxes for one year?

Yes, it would mean approximately 55 per cent more taxes for one year. As an example—a property owner paying $15 city taxes would be required to pay about $23 or $8 additional for one year.

Would war veterans be exempt from taxes under this plan?

A War Veteran owning property actually worth over $2000 would have to pay taxes.

How is this explained?

All property in Daly City is to be assessed this year approximately at 50 per cent of its true value, hence property with a true value of $4000 will be assessed for $2000 and Veterans being exempt for $1000 will therefore pay on the assessed valuation over and above the $1000 exemption.

Has the above mentioned plan of assessment on all property any bearing on or any connection with the coming election?

No—property will be thus assessed this year regardless of the outcome of the election.

What is the purpose of this change in assessments?

Principally, to equalize taxes so that in so far as possible each property owner, large or small, will pay his rightful share of the money necessary to run the city government.

Will taxes in general be higher in Daly City if the election does not carry?

No, they will not. However, they will be equalized, which means that those who have been underpaying will now pay more while those who have been overtaxed, will pay less.

Has the property of Daly City been inequably assessed heretofore?

Yes, a study showed this to be a fact.

Who is the assessor in Daly City?

The City Clerk.

Will the equalization in assessments be made by the City Clerk?

No—the work will be done by the City Council sitting as a Board of Equalization.

What is the basis for actual valuations of property in Daly City and upon which the City Council as a Board of Equalization will base the assessed valuations?

The Council proposes to use as a basis the valuation arrivtd at by trained men employed by the County about two years ago.

Is this information available for Daly City?

Yes—following the completion of that work by the County, a complete copy was made for Daly City's use and guidance.

Did that data and information cost Daly City anything?

Yes. Daly City paid for the work of copying the County's information and putting it into book form for the City's use.

What was the cost of obtaining for Daly City this valuable information and copying it?

Approximately $700.

What was the outstanding beneficial information in this work?

It discovered property of thousands of dollars of value not on the County or City tax rolls and showed property assessed at greatly varied percentages of its true value.

If this proposition is favorably voted upon next Saturday and the government help is not available in proper proportions, or if for any other reason the money raised for the proposed improvement is not used for this purpose, what will be done with it?

It will be used for general city expenses next year which should leave all property practically without taxes for general purposes next year.

What will the Daly City tax rate be this year?

Approximately eighty cents on the $100 assessed valuation if the election does not carry and $1.25 if it is voted favorably.

What was the Daly City tax rate last year?

(Ans.) $1.52.

Does it require a two-third vote to carry this election?

No—a majority vote decides the election.

How much work should this plan provide?

About 60 per cent of the total or $60,000 worth of work.

Will this work go to Daly City people?

The plan would anticipate the employing of local workmen in every way possible and as fully as possible.

Is there any immediate need for any of the proposed improvements?

Yes, for the most of them, and an urgent need for the new Library. The present Library is totally inadequate and if a new one is built under the ordinary plan it would mean a bond issue from $25,000 to $30,000 for the Library alone.

Will government money be available in the future for such a program as Daly City contemplates at this time?

Evidently not. Government officials have advised that there will be no further appropriations of money for such uses.

What is the general attitude of the people on this question as expressed by the various organizations?

The proposal has been indorsed by the following Daly City orangizations: Veterans of Foreign Wars, Old Glory Post No. 2044, The Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Colma Vitsa Grande Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Daly City Fire Department, Daly City Veteran Firemen's Association, Daly City Recreation and Improvement Club, Daly City Band.

If a fuller explanation is desired or if you wish to express yourself either in favor of or against the proposition, attend a Mass Meeting to be held at the Daly City Hall, Wednesday evening, August 21, 1935, 8 o'clock. You can learn at the City Hall just what your individual taxes will be this year, both if the proposition carries and if it is defeated.

Get this information before you vote. This information will be available up to and including election day, Saturday, August 24, 1935—Be sure to vote.

The Daly City Recreation and Improvement Club is composed of representatives of the various patriotic, fraternal, civic and other organizations of Daly City.

You can help yourself and your home newspaper by patronizing your home merchants.

CITY FATHERS IN REGULAR MEET

Routine Business Occupies Time of Busy Session Monday Evening

At the meeting of the Daly City Council on Monday evening a communication was read from the Peninsula League of Municipalities, announcing a meeting of that body on Thursday and asking representation from the council. Engineer Klassen volunteered to attend, inasmuch as no member of the council was available, owing to that body sitting as a board of equalization on Thursday evening.

A. Benedetti sent a letter stating that the fire house for Company No. 6 had been completed and was ready for occupancy.

A communication was received by the council from the Catholic Daughters, Court St. Mary, proposing to purchase the lot owned by the city adjoining the Lady of Perpetual Help Church. The council ordered a letter sent, offering to sell and grade this lot for $1000, the grading to be done within 90 days.

There appearing no objections to the planning committee's suggestion for rezoning of lot 13 in block 21 in Crocker Addition, the matter of final action was laid over until the next regular meeting.

A resolution was passed calling for bids for purchase of two light types of automobile, and also for heavier types of sedan.

An ordinance was read proposing rezoning of Commercial District No. 1. The chairman of this committee was requested to submit a report for general rezoning of the city.

The city clerk was instructed to answer a communication to the effect that Councilman Fahy will interview the owners of a two-foot strip on the Junipero Serra boulevard regarding rezoning and sale of the property.

It was announced that the territory annexed to Daly City in 1931 had not been included in the present census. As the city's allocation of state gasoline taxes is based on three times the number of regitered voters in municipalities, it was suggested that a canvas be made and the residents urged to register at once. Councilman Fahy volunteered to perform the service.

On the advice of the city attorney that such procedure would be legal, it was ordered that a circular signed by the City Council be sent to Daly City reidents, explaining the proposed projects for improvements within the city now under consideration.

It was stated that information regarding these projects would be available through members of the council during all of next week at the city hall.

Notices have been sent out that the council will sit as a board of equalization on Thursday of this week.

She is survived by her parents and her brother, Perry Wood.

Funeral services were held Sunday evening in a San Francisco undertaking establishment at 7:30 o'clock under the auspices of Bishop R. Vance Pearson, of the Church Latter Day Saints.

SYNOPSIS

Following his father's bitter criticism of his idle life, and the withdrawal of financial assistance, Hal Ireland, only son of a wealthy banker, finds himself practically without funds but with the promise of a situation in San Francisco, which he must reach, from New York, within a definite time limit. He takes passage with a cross-country auto party on a "share expense" basis. With five other members of the party, an attractive girl, Barry Trafford; middle-aged Giles Kerrigan; Sister Anastasia, a nun; and an individual whom he instinctively dislikes, Martin Crack, he starts his journey. Barry's reticence annoys him. To Kerrigan he takes at once, but he is unable to shake off a feeling of uneasiness. He distrusts Crack, although finding his intimacy with Kerrigan ripening, and he makes a little progress with Barry. Through a misunderstanding, at a stopping place, Hal is directed to Barry's room, instead of his own. Propinquity seems to soften Barry's unfriendliness, and they exchange kisses.

Crack gave an uncomfortable laugh as he got out, and a faint blush deepened his old-fashioned youthfulness. "I guess that pup don't like me so very well," he said. He smiled shyly at Hal, as if half-hoping for some other explanation from him; but then his eyes drifted lazily away again, undisappointed.

The morning lay hot and long over the flat croplands of Indiana and Illinois. As Rasputin sang along the road past farm and field and farm, through brief brick towns, noon-drowsy and unbustled, the land kept the character of things it knew, the assurance of things it remembered. Hal's sense of these quickened sometimes to Kerrigan's remark and implication, sometimes to untried appreciations of his own—not so much forgotten as never before found.

Rasputin ran like an aristocrat, granting an aristocrat the privilege of metallic song in the gearbox and a disinclination to compete with low-price upstarts at a change of traffic light. And before Mrs. Pulsipher could come to the fidgeting preliminaries of lunch-hunger, they were crossing the Illinois river into Peoria.

Barry saw the sign on a cafeteria in a side street, "Air Cooled and Conditioned." And there was a chorus of grateful exclamation and a struggling into jackets as the almost-chilled draft swept up the stairway. Down in the bright bustle of the cafeteria itself, Sister Anastasia suddenly sneezed, then looked at Barry with a pretty expression halfway between amusement and apology. Barry's hand went to her arm, her clear face lighted with quick, humorous sympathy. Kerrigan took the dead cigarette from his lips and, with an air of awkward courtliness upon his bulk, said to her, "We'll all catch the Russian grippe in here. Sister, allow me to take you somewhere else."

"Oh no—thahnk you," said Sister Anastasia, her eyes grateful and still amused, her diction trying carefully to elude the accent that touched it.

It was an enchanting voice—in its gentleness of grace and inner assurance that still, as Barry had said, kept you from using the word humble. Hal smiled in pleasure as he watched her. And since Barry would not meet his eyes—not actually avoiding them but seeming to know of no use in meeting them—he had double welcome for an impulsive tenderness, brought his tray of lunch to the empty place beside the nun.

She spoke only when she was spoken to; but the restrained ease of what she said, the smooth, quiet cadence she gave to each sentence made it delightful to go on prompting her. They talked of nothing much that Hal remembered clearly; how long she had been in America, the pleasures and imperfections of crossing the ocean, the view from the Empire State building, the world eminence of American cities in degree of summer heat. And then Hal had an innocent, urgent desire to see her blush—a little, once, to see what she might have been like as a young girl with a first beau. And he said:

"Have you heard, Sister, that California is a place where the fruit has no flavor, the flowers no scent, and the ladies no charm?"

"No," she said, looking at him in guileless interest. "I 'ave not 'eurd that. Is it true?"

"I don't know surely, because I've never been there," said Hal, without concealing his pleasure in her. "I've tasted oranges from there which were sweet; and I've been told that their orange blossoms at least have the scent they do in other places. As for the last part of the saying, I know it will not be true when you and Miss Trafford get to California."

For an instant Hal was afraid he would have to be ashamed of himself; Sister Anastasia glanced quickly away; but then he saw she was looking toward the other end of the table where Barry sat, her head turned from them, intent upon whatever Kerrigan was telling her. The nun turned to him again, a contained, soft smiling in her look.

"It is a long time since I 'ave 'eurd anything like that," she said in tranquil simplicity. She looked down at her plate, and Hal's pleasure leapt for the faint running-up of warmth under her cool, immaculate cheeks. Then she said, very softly, "Miss Trafford is beautiful—inside, too."

* * * * * * *

Hal was two places behind Barry in the line at the cashier's window. A spectacular woman, past her twenties, leaned beside it, waiting until the cashier should be free again. She wanted a spotlight to tone down the heavy mascara on her eyelashes, the bold make-up of her lips, the revealing tightness of her bright dress. She watched Barry steadily, unwary of being caught: her resentful eyes moved from detail to detail, rapidly calculating the composition of each effect; her petulant mouth, loosely at rest, indicated neither approval nor envy. Hal was watching the woman's whole, unconscious interest when Barry paid her check.

Barry looked down at Doctor Caligari, flicked his leash to start him up, then raised her deliberate glance to the woman's face and smiled. Hal could see Barry's profile, clear and candid, as she spoke her low, friendly "Hullo." The woman's sullen eyes cheered quickly and artless dimples came at once beside her efficient smile. As if she recognized Barry, she said, "Hello, cuteness."

"Hot out," said Barry.

"Hot is right," said the woman. "Keep outa the sun."

"Will," said Barry, a quiet sort of thanks in her smiling; and her easy, long-legged walk took her toward the door, the woman's look following her in contented approval.

Now why did she do that? Hal asked himself in uninvited, consciously unreasonable irritation.

He caught up with her outside the door to the street that seemed baked, not only by the sun but by a fanatic furnace just under the pavement, too.

"Going to walk the Doctor, or sit in the car?" he said.

"Walk," said Barry, hardly looking at him.

With a single, mirthless laugh at the beginning, he said, "D'you rather I sat in the car till you're finished?"

She looked at him as if she hadn't quite caught his meaning. "Come if you like," she said.

They walked toward the principal street and turned into it—without speaking. Then the restive need to clear something up, to purge something out of his gathered dissatisfaction, took sudden charge of his tongue and he said, "Barry, I want to talk to you." And the pointlessness of that was apparent to him even before he'd finished.

"But I Mustn't Love You. You Mustn't Love Me."

"All right," she said inconsequently. "What about?"

"Not on the main street of Peoria at two o'clock in the afternoon," he said.

"Why not?"

"You know d—n well why not."

Barry looked at him unsympathetically but without anger, and her low, steady voice said, "In the first place, I wouldn't've asked if I knew why not, and in the second place, throwing d—ns around doesn't help me understand you."

"Oh h—l," said Hal, more in vague disgust with himself than anything else.

"That's not necessary, either," she said.

"Barry, what's the matter?"

"Not a darn thing—with me," she said.

"Oh," he said; and they walked for another ten paces or so of silence. Then, as an accusation, he said to her, "You didn't know that woman—that woman you spoke to down there. Why did you speak to her?"

Barry waited an instant before she said, still not turning to him, "Because I liked her looks; because some day I may have to put up with what she has to put up with, and I hope people speak to me without thinking they're smart, or wanting something."

"Barry!" said Hal, in the quick authority he would have used for the dog.

"You asked me,' said Barry. Her eyes and brows disclaimed responsibility for his reaction. "I supposed you wanted me to tell you."

"Barry," said Hal with forced restraint, "tell me something else. Is last night gone clean out of your head? Did it mean nothing to you after I'd left"—and he added with not wholly convincing bitterness—"like an idiot."

She looked round at him, the clean, long arches of her eyebrows raised. Then, not as a question but ironically, to be sure that's what he'd said, she repeated, "Like an idiot."

He watched her without speaking, almost wishing her eyes would at least do him the small honor of anger or defiance, not stay in their cool, remote composure that had nothing, one way or the other, to do with him. Then, just as some change began somewhere deep in her blue look, she turned her head and seemed to walk a little faster, as if she saw where she had to go.

Hal looked ahead too and said, with dissatisfied assurance, "I didn't mean 'like an idiot' and you know it."

He thought it was because her ankle had started to turn that her shoulder came lightly against him. But then her hand caught his, brought it halfway up, and pressed the back of it briefly against her jacket, over her heart, before she gave it back to him. And still she looked straight before her—a grave look, at nothing that was in the street ahead.

In the calm knowledge that flashed into abrupt, reckless command of his spirit, that then indeed became his spirit, his whole living conviction, he stopped her walking with his hand at her elbow. She let her body half turn to his hold of her, but not her head. That didn't matter: she would turn her face to him in another sure, plain moment. "Barry," he said, "I love you. You know that, too."

She glanced down at Doctor Caligari, as if she were trying to think of something that would show how sorry she was for him. And when slowly she faced Hal at last, her eyes were soft with grieving helplessness.

"I didn't make you say that," she said quietly. "I didn't want you to. Dear God! why did you have to say that?"

"Because I meant it," he told her, strength from extravagant stores running up to help him pierce most deeply with the bright rapier of his knowledge. "Because I'm too full of it to wait one more second of loneliness to tell you in every, sharp, desperate way there is that I love you, Barry—love you, love you. Barry—oh, blast Peoria and all its sunlight!"

When he broke off, she looked down at his mouth, then back into his eyes, her look wondering, incredulous, young in its bafflement before something not to be understood at once, mature in its certainty that all the pain was yet to be counted.

"Darling," she said softly, just to say it under his watching. Then, more strongly: "Darling, I can't love you. I mustn't. That's true, true—even if I'd—I'd give my eyes not to have it. I'll tell you why—truly; and you'll see. But I have to wait till I know how to tell you. I promise, my dearest, I shall know. But I mustn't love you. You mustn't love me." She looked at him as if she had known him very well and he were now suddenly going to leave her.

Then quickly her eyes left his and she turned around, drawing at Doc's leash. "We must go back, Hal," she said hurriedly. "Please, we've got to."

They were on the heat-shimmered road again by three, a hundred miles from the Mississippi crossing. There was a current of gaiety which carried off even the standard post-luncheon torpor, as if the atmosphere of the car were infected by the profligate, exulting buoyancy under Hal's own heart.

For Hal could dismiss the conviction of grief in Barry's eyes for his joy in the small marvels of their passage in the street; the quick touching of her shoulder to his arm; the pressure of her living side against the back of his caught hand; the near-husky enchantment in her calling him darling. What could she have behind her blue eyes to stand against his invincibility? Some fragile shadow of an obstacle—the fact that he was Frederick Ireland's son, or the beckoning of Hollywood; trifles which he could shatter when he had his time to speak, out of the strength which she herself had unleashed to surge up under the single necessity left in the world.

The time was coming—today, as swiftly as the hard road under Rasputin's wheels. Excitement filled him, pushed newly in each moment to escape his chest; and there was room for no more than a flash of shame at the niggardliness of his spirit that had quibbled with his being most valiantly in love, for the first—good G—d, yes, the first real time in his life.

The little bridge-sign announcing Kickapoo creek, made him chuckle with pleasure; and when he glanced at Kerrigan, he put no restraint on his affectionate comfort in being here beside him.

"Hey, my frand," said Kerrigan, bending gravely toward him, "where did you go in Peoria?"

"Why, Colonel?" said Hal, grinning.

"You look as though you'd slipped on a million dollars' worth of eternal verities and found your initials stamped on all of 'em."

"Little place around the corner I found on my way home from the Klondike," said Hal. "Run by an ex-aide-de-camp to the czar whose life I saved at Port Arthur. Napoleon brandy from original casks at a nickel a goblet. I've no secrets from you, Munchausen."

CALIFORNIA
News of the Week

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, again enthroned as the queen of tennis, has returned home to Berkeley. She has discarded her poker face for a charming smile. She said, "Retire? I should say not! I'm just beginning again."

The Snowline CCC camp near Placerville has been awarded the highest rating among 38 CCC camps in northern California and Nevada. The award was based on sanitation, camp morale and work accomplished.

A lone masked bandit, armed with a submachine gun, held up Plunge Inn near Oroville, escaping with between $35 and $40. Witnesses say the robber resembled Robert Miller, fugitive slayer of Police Chief F. R. Daw of Dunsmuir. Miller's accomplice, C. L. Johnson, was caught by authorities and later lynched.

There are traffic laws in California with "teeth." Miss Beverly Kelly drove along an outskirts street in San Francisco at 60 miles an hour. After a two and a half mile chase she was caught and sentenced to 120 days in the county jail.

Both class and correspondence courses are being offered by the University of California, Berkeley, to enable students who had taken non-college preparatory courses in high school to catch up in their subjects and be eligible for entrance to universities. This is one of the first programs of its kind in the nation.

The first time in history, the Golden Gate, colorful entrance to San Francisco Bay, was closed to shipping. For 20 minutes coast guard boats patroled the Gate while a tug pushing a barge chugged across the mile strip of water, laying the first of the "catwalk" cables. Twenty-four cables are being pulled across between the 746-foot towers to support catwalks for cable spinning.

Meetings of the State Senate subcommittee investigating California's civil service have been indefinitely postponed. Two changes in the service will be proposed as a result of the investigations. More frequent reports will be made of work of temporary employes, and reports on probationary employes will be made every six months to prevent sudden ousters for "inefficiency."

The Washington conference on Pacific Coast maritime troubles has come to an end with little accomplished. Assistant Labor Secretary Edward McGrady said, "Settlement of the trouble is up to the unions." Union members will vote whether to clear vessels tied up at San Francisco's port.

The influx of non-resident indigents into California is at last abating. Past three months shows a decrease of 30 per cent. There are three reasons for this: Federal Transient Service is sending as many transients as possible back to their homes; the government is forcing many to remain in their places of legal residence to be eligible for jobs; the All-Year Club is warning unemployed to stay away from California.

Strongly opposed to Los Angeles County's exploitation of $419,500 to be disbursed to six civic organizations, the Municipal League has threatened to bring a taxpayers' suit to collect all or part of the $6,000,000 paid to local civic organizations during the last ten years. Anthony Pratt, league president, said the appropriation was "in contravention to sound public policy and peculiarly so, in a time of serious economic stress when 500,000 people are on public relief."

A small tubercular monkey in the Hollywood laboratory of Dr. Ralph Willard, 32-year-old scientist, was put to death by an overdose of ether after a saline solution had been injected into his blood to prevent coagulation. After dousing his head with carbon dioxide to cause sudden freezing and to prevent brain cells from disintegrating, he was placed in a freezing chamber. After three days he was removed, as cold and hard as marble. He was warmed and revived and is now as lively as ever.

A shortcut almost led to disaster at Yosemite Park when Miss Elizabeth Lorimer, 23, and Robert Tate, 35, started down from Half Dome at night, left the trail in an effort to speed their descent and suddenly found themselves on a narrow ledge of rock, 2000 feet above the valley floor. They could neither go back nor forward. Cries and the flicker of a small fire attracted rangers who finally reached them after several hours. Miss Lorimer was unhurt but Tate had to be strapped to a stretcher and lowered by ropes.

Two Navy fliers, Lt. J. G. Nelson and M. J. Glynn, radio operator, died as their scouting plane crashed near San Diego.

Again the vigilante makes his appearance in California. A nameless organization of 300 Sonoma County citizens recently issued an ultimatum demanding that labor agitators in the ranks of Sonoma WPA or FERA units leave the county within 48 hours. A strike meeting was raided and Vernon Healy, alleged communist leader, was sent to the hospital.

Over-Frankness in Matter of Truth Will Not at All Times Be Acceptable, or Justified

Can you tell me why the whole world is so afraid of the truth? Why people implore you to tell them the truth but want you to tell them only what they hope to hear?

"A woman who is trying to write comes to you for your opinion. 'The truth,' she says, 'I want to know the truth.' What she wants to hear however is that all the editors who have sent back her work are ignorant or stupid or conniving to print only the products of their friends. If you really tell her the truth—that what she writes has neither the benefit nor entertainment value demanded by the readers whom editors must satisfy—you get for your thanks a stony look, and the knowledge that you have joined the roster of the 'unappreciative' or 'malicious.' Why, oh why don't they want to know the truth?

"And then the people who come to you for advice on their problems with husband or children. They do not really want advice as you see their problem from your detached viewpoint. What they really want is to hear that they have the best husband in the world and the finest children, and therefore no problem at all if they will only take the way of least resistance. Why do they ask advice if they don't want it? Why, oh why don't they want the truth?"

This by no means novel question, put to an ethical authority, drew the following answer:

"I am sorry, dear reader, but I can't help wondering. In this complex business that is life, if any of us has the right to set ourselves up as knowing the truth. For my part I should shrink from the terrible responsibility of pointing out to anyone arbitrarily the truth about anything.

"I feel that way about assuming the cloak of authority even in matters in which I can claim experience. I should hesitate to discourage creative effort. There is always the danger, in condemning a piece of work, of mistaken judgment. More than one manuscript that has been crowned with the laurel wreath of greatness was at one time dismissed by all to whom it was submitted as so much trash. One of the most successful as well as meritorious plays of recent years had production a year or so ago almost by accident after being rejected by every manager on Broadway. Much of what is today considered great in modern painting would at one time have been regarded as the pastime of lunatics. So who are we to give final judgment?

"And when it comes to domestic matters, why should we assume that our detached position and our viewpoint hold the key to truth? To my mind there is in such personal problems no arbitrary general 'truth.' What may be right for one person under certain circumstances may not be right for another. Each problem between a husband and wife or a family and children, seems to me an equation between those particular warring or balancing forces. Put yourself in the place of one of them and you completely change the equation. So how can we presume to dictate the 'truth?'

"It is logical to ask, 'Why do people come to us in this way for help and advice which they do not want?' But we do not have to go far for the answer. They come to us for help, it is true, though not for advice. And the help they crave is encouragement, reinforcement, a bolstering up of their belief—in themselves or those they love. That is why it is so obvious what they want to hear. And since many of us must take part of life's happiness in the currency of illusion, it may indeed be the province of a true friend to help to maintain that."

WHAT IS WEALTH?

A woman has said in court that with $200,000 to her name she would not call herself rich. In another court a bankrupt said that he did not feel wealthy on $10,000 a year and sometimes was very hard up. An actress who had more than $20,000 a year has told how she had to spend $30,000. These people have missed a lot of fun. A man who feels rich because he has a dollar in his pocket is fifty times as well off as any of them. His is a grand and glorious feeling. — Manchester (Eng.) MINE DEVELOPER HAD THRILLING CAREER IN NORTH

Sometimes William Yawkey Won High Returns and at Other Times He Lost

In the earliest days of Rossland—about 1895—many capitalists of the United States arrived on the scene among them W. C. Yawkey, and his son, William Hoover, of Detroit.

Reputed at the time to be worth up to ten million, the elder Yawkey had a flint at mining, taking over the Iron Colt and other properties in the neighborhood.

Later, he acquired the Ivanhoe group, in the Slocan district and a 100-ton concentrator was subsequently built just below Sandon on Carpenter Creek.

Young Yawkey was a handsome, white-dentaled, harum-scarum, boisterous sort of a fellow in these eye-teeth-cutting days, known to his intimates as "Saginaw Bill." He was strong as a horse and a fine boxer. Nothing pleased him more than to yank a bartender over a bar, just to prove he could do it.

Spokaneites of the time will not forget the memorable boxing match between "Bill" and Jerome Drumhelle, now a prominent mining man of that city and then one of the finest athletes of the Northwest. What Jerry did to Bill in the Old Spokane Athletic Club was just nobody's business, but it may be said with truth that Bill's prowess as a boxer was never flaunted in those parts again.

Many a Spokane and Rossland beauty set her cap for Bill in his salad days, but he was impervious to their charms and wholly gun-shy of wedding bells.

After his father's death and inheritance of the great estate equally with his only sister ,he settled down to business with energy and keen judgment not surpassed even by the "old man."

The estate embraced immense timber acreage in Minnesota, West Virginia and other parts of the United States, and with the luck that often seems to pursue those born with silver spoons in their mouths, much of it multiplied enormously in value through discovery of extension of the great iron ore beds in Minnesota and prolific oil pools in West Virginia.

Bill was a great sports lover and never missed a prize fight or baseball match if it was humanly possible to be present. To indulge his passion to the fullest extent, he bought the Detroit franchise in the American Baseball League and, sparing no expense to make his team the best, won no less than three pennants in the days when Ty Cobb was the sensation of the great U. S. game.

Extending his mining experiences, he spent large sums at Bisbee, Arizona, and in the Bradshaw Mountains in the same state, where he poured a lot of money into Kay Copper without result.

After the death of his sister, he adopted her son, Tom, as his own and at his death the estate passed on to the latter and Bill's widow, who lives in New York, where the estate maintains offices and takes an important part in the purchase and sale of bonds for its own account.

Bill died when but 46, at the home of Ty Cobb, in Atlanta, Georgia, where he stopped on his way from his hunting lodge in North Carolina, in the incipient stages of pneumonia, which carried him away.

Tom Yawkey is as great a sports lover as his adopted father and, with plenty of money to indulge his whims, followed in the paternal or avuncular footsteps and last year bought control of the Boston baseball club in one or the other big league, though the writer has forgotten which.

With Saginaw Bill's premature death went another glimmering chance of fortune for the writer.

Two weeks before he was struck down he had wired me to meet him in Phoenix, Arizona, following a meeting in New York, when he volunteered the welcome information that he intended to make me some real money.

With the telegram came generous expense money and so further advices were anxiously awaited. Before the date set for the meeting I wired his New York office and was advised that he lay ill at Atlanta.

A few days later came word of his death and one more fine, worthwhile, interesting old friend had gone on.

What wold have happened to the current of my life had he lived, none can tell, but his interests were so great and so diverse that there is not much doubt I should have "lighted" on a soft spot ,with most of the worries of life left behind, that is of a financial nature.

But even so, I might have missed experiences worth as much as money or smug safety from the buffets of Fortune.

I have learned that great wealth is by no means an unmixed blessing; that he who has just enough to keep him tugging at the traces is a far happier man.

Looking back over the years and calling to mind the men who have made great fortunes in the Northwest, I know of few cases where sudden wealth has brought great happiness.

Seems to me that when it has been won, the winter either loses his wife, his stomach or his head, or worse than that, is compelled to contemplate a family contributing nothing but grief and useless expense.

One fine daughter or son is worth more than a million.

So, in spite of a purse that has been stepped on as if by an elephant, I am at least three times a millionaire.

There is no envy in my soul.—Sidney Norman in Vancouver Sun.

WEEKLY BULLETIN

By Chief A. P. Chesney

Fire prevention is nothing more than common sense and forethought applied to our premises, buildings and the equipment installations.

Yet despite this the average citizen to an unwarranted degree remains indifferent to conditions which he has from time to time learned had been the cause of some terrible conflagration.

The large percentage of fires start from bad housekeeping conditions, mostly defined as irregularity, disorder and lack of care. A preventable fire should be looked upon as a crime; but there should be no need for such accusation, because it is easily within reach to prevent fire or at least reduce the possibility to a minimum.

When we come to the question of Fire Prevention these are the three main points to consider: First, a good citizen will try in every way to avoid any of the practises that cause fire; second, he will remove all dangerous conditions that he may find in his home or place of business; and, third, he will train himself to recognize dangerous conditions in his community and will use his influence, both to have them removed and to educate others to habits of carefulness.

If this were done fire would almost cease to be a public peril.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Soul will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, August 18, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "I will set my tabernacle among you: and my soul shall not abhor you. And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people" (Lev. 26: 11, 12). Other Bible citations will include: "The sorrows of death compassed me, and the pains of hell gat hold upon me: I found trouble and sorrow. Then called I upon the name of the Lord; O Lord, I beseech thee, deliver my soul. . . . The Lord preserveth the simple: I was brought low, and he helped me. . . For thou hast delivered my soul from death, mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling" (Ps. 116: 3, 4, 6, 8).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "If it is true that man lives, this fact can never change in Science to the opposite belief that man dies. Life is the law of Soul, even the law of the spirit of Truth, and Soul is never without its representative. Man's individual being can no more die nor disappear in unconsciousness than can Soul, for both are immortal" (p. 427).

FOUNTAINS TO MAKE BRILLIANT PICTURE

Two new fountains will give a festive touch to the California State Fair grounds when the state's eighty-first annual exposition opens for ten days on August 31.

A towering electric fountain will rise in the rotunda of the horticultural building, with Neon lights giving a new radiance to the vast interior. Water sprays will play into a large reflecting pool which will also be lighted in vari-colored hues.

The four concrete bears which have for years guarded the present fountain will be turned out to pasture as ornaments on the state fair lawns. A rock garden fountain will also be installed in the center of the educational building with California plants and shrubs as greenery.

HELP YOUR HOME PAPER

The local merchant can increase his business and keep purchases at home by advertising in The Record.

PRETTY GIRLS WILL AID IN FAIR PARI-MUTUELS

You can't sit right in your grandstand seat and still take part in the pari-mutuels on the state fair racing events, during the eight day racing program which opens on August 31.

A corps of attractively-uniformed girl messengers will be on hand between races to take orders to the pari-mutuel windows. Evelyn Miller, who has supervised a similar staff for the past two years at the Los Angeles County Fair track, will be in charge of this new service.

Extra elbow room in front of the grandstand will be available this year because of the addition of extra ticket windows on the main floor of the grandstand building, reached by a wide ramp from the front lawn.

MOURNER COPS PRIZE

Saying it with flowers brought its reward to Miss Julia Porter of Bolivar, Mo. For several years she attended every funeral in the town and carried flowers. A local undertaker suggested that she run for city treasurer on a "posy platform," which she did, and was elected as a Democrat, although Bolivar is normally Republican.

STATE FAIR TO PICTURE CALIFORNIA EARLY MINING HISTORY

Rare photographs of early day mining activities in California, as well as of present-day developments, will be a new feature of mineral displays at the California State Fair, which opens in Sacramento for ten days on August 31.

Producers, prospectors and mining equipment leaders will also gather at the state fair to discuss plans for liberalizing the new federal program for aiding in the financing of mining properties.

The conference will be held on Mining Day, Tuesday, September 3, and will bring mining representatives from all parts of the west.

Harry Sears, president of the mining Association of California, and also head of the Calaveras Central Gold Mining Company, Ltd., of Angels Camp, will be the principal speaker. His subject will be "The Future of Gold Mining in California."

Plans for the picture display and conference are in charge of Charles L. Gilmore, chairman of the mining committee of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce.

How Far Does Motorist Go?

A large number of California motorists covered only an average of 138 miles on their longest touring trips during 1934, according to U. S. Bureau of Public Roads figures.

As to territory, the motorists range was over an area of only a few neighboring counties. Which leads one to believe that there is room for expansion of the touring impulse of the average American despite the general estimate of him as an inveterate motor traveler.

CLOGGED FUEL LINES

Many cars are disabled on the highways as a result of clogged fuel lines. Motorists can avoid inconvenience and delay by having the fuel system checked regularly by a service man. The time required is not great and the cost of such inspection is small.

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Some Little Known Matters That Should Prove of General Interest

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Question: What is the standard measurement for barrels in the United States?

Answer: Since 1915, the law provides for a barrel with 21½ inch staves, 17 1-8 inch heads, and the material must not be more than 4-10 of an inch in thickness. The capacity must be 7056 cubic inches. To sell what is stated to be a barrel of any commodity in a vessel of less than 7056 cubic inches capacity is an offense punishable by a fine of $500 or six months imprisonment.

Question: What materials are used in the making of baskets?

Answer: Imported material consists of rattan, raffia, palm leaf, rushes and hemp.

The native material consists of willow, cat-tail, flags, rushes, straw, grasses, corn husks, willow bark, cedar bark, and for large baskets, splints of ash and other woods.

There may be other materials available for baskets, for in each locality may be found something peculiar to that locality that may not be found elsewhere.

Question: What is an Archer Fish?

Answer: A fish which gets its name from the peculiar way in which it catches the insects on which it feeds. It is said that it is able to shoot drops of water at insects a distance of three or four feet, and to bring them into the water within reach. The Archer Fish is about six inches in length and is found in the waters around the East Indies.

Question: Who wrote "Beware of little expenses, a small leak will sink a great ship?"

Answer: Benjamin Franklin, under Pseudonym of Richard Saunders. The above saying was one of many in the writings he named "Poor Richard's Almanac." In 1733 an almanac was often one of the very few books to be found in the household.

Question: About how many hymns are there in all the languages of the world?

Answer: It has been estimated that there are at least four hundred thousand hymns. The greatest number are in German, and the next greatest in English.

Dirt Separates Points

The newer lighting circuit protector which dispenses with the conventional fuse is a marked advance in simplicity and convenience, but it requires a little attention now and again.

Sometimes its points become dirty so that they are prevented from making contact. When this happens the lights go out. The remedy is simple: Merely press them together with a slight rubbing motion.

WHAT MONTH OF AUGUST PORTENDS

(By Maude Larue Ives)

August was named for the Roman Emperor Augustus, one of the most popular rulers of any time. There is, indeed, something royal obut this month of gold and purple. Its sun throws a "golden glory" on the yellowing fields. There are golden rod and purple asters everywhere, while purple, red and green grapes hang ripening on the vines.

It is one of the warmest months in the northern hemisphere, and usually so still that its heat is of the sweltering variety. Its special flower is the poppy and its gem the sardonyx.

Julius Caesar had already rechristened the month of July for himself. Augustus also desired a like honor, so he chose for his "lucky month" the indeed, something royal about this one in which he had been elected consul, had three times celebrated a triumph, and had complted the conquest of Egypt. In order to make August thirty-one days in length, the same as July, a day was taken from February, already the shortest of the months, and added to August.

Colorado celebrates the first of August, the date of its admission to the Union, and Missouri the tenth for a similar reason, while Vermont observes with fitting ceremonies the sixteenth, the anniversary of the Battle of Bennington.

"The brilliant poppy flaunts her head
Amidst the ripening grain,
And adds her voice to swell the song
That August's here again."—Winslow.

Broken Spring Leaves

Those broken spring leaves which dot the pavement at frequent intervals are the product of attempting to drive the car without having the spring bolts and clips tightened occasionally.

FAULTY TIRE RIM

A tire rim which has bent or flat spots may eventually damage the tire, say experts.

Damaged rims should be replaced. Running on a flat tire on a rim from which the tire has been removed frequently causes rim damage which cannot be properly repaired. Such rims are often the cause of blowouts. Rusty rims are inujrious to tubes as well as casings. Rims should always be cleaned and checked for trueness before a new casing is installed.

The evening was also in the form of a reception honoring two of the Parlor's members, Mrs. Alice Mathias Oldman, recently elected grand trustee at the state convention held in Sacramento, and Miss Margaret Mary Steele, who won the Native Daugh-

SLIMNESS ALONG WITH SIMPLICITY

Pattern 9350

Every line in this dress is cleverly contrived to "lie" about your weight. The unbroken line from shoulder to hip adds to your height, the diagonal closing "slims" you down and the panel skirt gives you a trim hip line. Why it makes you "feel" slimmer, just to look at this frock. Notice how cleverly it avoids waistline emphasis, but adds four buttons for smart accents. About the house, you'll appreciate the unhampered freedom of the easy fitting sleeve and bodice. Run up several in printed cottons for about-the-house and make a dark printed foulard for smart town wear.

Pattern 9350 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards 36-inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York.

CHILDREN'S HOBBIES

It is wise to allow children to choose their own hobbies, as hobbies that are forced upon them often turn out failures. If the mother can arrange it, she should provide a definite place in which the children can exercise their hobbies. If the hobby is the rearing of animals or birds, the mother should impress on the children that their pets are not toys or playthings, and that they must be loved and cared for. There is a greater likelihod of a hobby turning out a success if the mother gives the child to understand that the success or failure of the hobby depends entirely upon the child.

SCOTT IS OUSTED AS ENGINEER BY SURPRISE MOVE

Office Now In Control of U. Marshall On Orders From County Executive Walter T. Kellogg.

In a surprise move by County Executive Walter Kellogg, Wednesday morning of this week, the office of county engineer is now in complete control of U. S. Marshall, appointee engineer.

Carl Scott, acting engineer by virtue of his refusal to vacate the office, was notified that in future Marshall would be in command, and that the former was to vacate.

All employes were given written notice as to who was their new superior, with instructions to obey orders from him or they would be dismissed.

Gilbert Ferrell, district attorney, was unaware of the action and criticized those responsible for "taking things into their own hands.

The move by Kellogg brought to a head a long standing controversy as to who would be recognized as the county enginer. Tht matter has been hanging fire since April 29, when the Board of Supervisors ratified a resolution appointing Marshall and demanding Scott's resignation, supposedly with the promise of a deputyship in the department. During the intervening time three of the supervisors recognized Marshall as engineer, while the other two, Poole and Beer, insisted that Scott was in control of the department. Those in favor of Marshall were Witt, Francis and High.

The rumor is current that W. W. Hendricks of Redwood City will succeed R. L. Amick as chief deputy. No other changes are expected for the present.

Accompanying Kellogg when he took possession of the office, before 8 o'clock in the morning, were Attorneys Bullock, Vincent and Gerald Hallinan and Marshall. Entrance was gained by a key secured from the janitor by Kellogg.

Threats were made that strong arm methods would be resorted to by Scott's attorney, Fred Coomba, when he attempted to re-possess the office in behalf of his client.

Kellogg declared his action was justified on the grounds that the removal of Scott by him and confirmation by the Board of Supervisors complied with all procedure required; that the action was taken in the best interests of the people of the county; that federal funds for relief road projects were in jeopardy, and that the actions of Scott have hampered the functioning of the department.

ACTIVITIES THIS MONTH IN CAMP OF OLD GLORY

At the meeting of August 9, a description of the anticipated public improvements was given by Comrade Mayor Smith and Comrade Johnson. Whether or not these contemplated public benefits are to become a reality or not depends entirely upon the way the people of Daly City cast their votes on August 24. Attend the mass meeting on August 21, at the City Hall, and hear "what is what." The Veterans of Daly City should interest themselves in this issue, as it means much, including federal aid and work for the people of Daly City.

The alteration of the Vista Grande School alone should be of sufficient interest to cause more than passing comment. With its six meeting halls and large assembly hall, it will be an ideal place for various institutions of Daly City.

The Public Library will likewise be of great benefit, as every one should know.

The new jail will be safer and more adequate, so, all in all, this no minor affair and should receive grave consideration on election day.

The Joseph McQuaide No. 1205 Drum and Bugle Corps, accompanied by their Auxiliary, paid a surprise visit to No. 2044 and their Auxiliary. Those of you who missed this meeting missed a rare treat. Everyone enjoyed the antics of the Haywire Orchestra.

Comrade Commander Henry Lamb of McQuaide No. 1205 gave a short talk on good comradeship and the value of it. Keep up the good work, McQuaide No. 1205. We certainly enjoyed it.

The members of No. 2044 had the pleasure of hearing the Ladies Auxiliary announce the inauguration of the Junior Girl Corps of Old Glory Auxiliary. This means competition for the boys, for however, a good start they may have, when the Auxiliary put their shoulders to the wheel, it means progress.

The Boys' Corps is gaining rapidly in membership and is destined to become a permanent institution in Daly City. These boys are our future citizens and builders, so everything should be done to help them along.

Don't forget to attend the whist given by our Auxiliary on Friday, August 16, "Tonight." If you see this in time, rustle yourself out of that easy chair and go up to give the ladies a hand.

Comrade Scott of some post or other had a few words to say in regard to the "Cootie Pup Tent," and he wants recruits to come up and get scratched.

VETERAN FIREMEN TO HAVE PICNIC

Everybody who wants to have a good time, Sunday, August 25, should go to the Veteran Firemen's Association picnic, which will be held at Valamar Park, near Brighten and Salada Beach.

Those who have no automobile may take the bus which will leave the "top of the hill" twice and also make two return trips.

Bring your lunch and cup. Coffee will be served free and don't forget the date.

NEW OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED BY EL CARMELO

Gifts Presented To Honor Guests In Appreciation Of Past Services

On Wednesday evening of last week, the newly elected officers of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, were publicly installed by Deputy Grand President Margaret Lintner of Menlo Parlor No. 211, Menlo Park, assisted by members of Menlo Park.

Miss Pauline Gregoire was elevated to the office of president, taking the place of Mrs. Leona Falk, retiring president. Mr. Falk's term was very successful, financially, socially and with increased membership.

The evening was also in the form of a reception honoring two of the Parlor's members, Mrs. Alice Mathias Oldman, recently elected grand trustee at the state convention held in Sacramento, and Miss Margaret Mary Steele, who won the Native Daughter Scholarship to the University of California at Berkeley. Miss Steele is the daughter of the charter president of the Parlor, Mrs. Margaret Callan Steele. Gifts were presented to the guests of honor and they were congratulated on their success.

Gifts were also presented to Supervising District Deputy May L. McDonald of Alta Parlor No. 2, Deputy Margaret Lintner, President Pauline Gregoire and Past President Leona Falk. Junior Past President Elsie Clemens was presented with a diamond studded emblem of the order.

The many guests enjoyed the program, also the refreshments and dancing which followed.

Mrs. Eleanor Boyle McDonald was in charge of the evening's arrangements.

ENTERTAIN GUESTS AT COUNTRY HOME

Mr. and Mrs. A. Milo of San Jose avenue entertained friends and relatives last week end at their country home in the Santa Cruz Mountains.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. E. Keagle and little daughter Beverly, Mr. and Mrs. M. De Beneditti, Mr. and Mrs. E. Milo and Mr. and Mrs. George Bonnald. Mrs. Bonnald was formerly Buelah Wamock of this city.

SWIM AT BATH

A group of friends motored to Sutro Baths, Sunday, and they enjoyed a delightful swim.

Those in the group were Mrs. Rose Loomis and daughter Virgina of Peoria street, Miss June Trifts, Miss Doris Robison, Barney Templin, Gene Nation, Louis Lupton and Leonard Stuheler.

ENRICO HAS BIRTHDAY

Enrico Bertini was guest at a surprise party given by his mother at her home on Mission street, Wednesday of this week, in honor of the lad's twelfth birthday.

About thirty of Enrico's young friends attended the party. After the playing of games, refreshments were served.

DALY CITY ROD AND GUN CLUB AT RIO VISTA DERBY

Have you qualified for the Rio Vista Derby? Whereas, to qualify for last year's Derby you had to catch and weigh in a five pound bass, this year all that is needed is a legal sized bass. Indications that there will be more bass than last year in and about Rio Vista are well foounded. The Sacramento River is lower than usual and the fall tides are forcing their way farther up the river, which means brackish water and more fish for the fall round up.

Bring that first prize to Daly City. Just think: a $1450 Hunter cabin cruser for the big fish and hundreds of other prizes for the smaller fish. Sure worth shooting at.

Keep that date in mind, September 8, and make reservations early!

Write Rio Vista Chamber of Commerce or Riverview Hotel. Do it now. Take the Sausalito ferry, thence to Napa, to Fairfield, to Rio Vista.

Antioch, Oakley, Pittsburg and Montezuma Slough report the stripers are cruising around. Limits of two to eight pounds are being taken, with an occasional large one being hooked. These spots are a good bet for next Sunday.

WEDDING BELLS ON ANNIVERSARY

James Geoffrey Garvin of Mason street, San Francisco, and Marjorie Ethel Simmerman of Santa Clara avenue, Alameda, quietly slipped into the Grace Church of the Nazarene, last Sunday at the close of the morning service, and were united in holy matrimony with Rev. J. M. Gill officiating.

This wedding took place on Rev. and Mrs. Gill's twelfth wedding anniversary.

Joyfully the newly weds departed for their Mason street home.
